Day Trading with Faith - Quiz

Topic: Can faith make day trading healthier or more successful?

Audience: General education learners

Format: Multiple-choice, short answer, and practical application

Purpose: To strengthen judgment, risk awareness, spiritual humility, and healthy decision-making around speculative trading.

Educational Disclaimer

This quiz is for educational purposes only. It is not personalized financial, legal, mental health, or spiritual advice.

Faith practices-such as prayer, reflection, confession, meditation, Sabbath/rest, accountability, generosity, and values-based decision-making-may support discipline, humility, emotional regulation, and ethical reflection. However, faith does not remove financial risk, guarantee profits, predict markets, or make speculative trading safe.

Day trading is high-risk. If trading is causing distress, secrecy, relationship conflict, financial harm, borrowing to trade, or an inability to stop, pause trading and seek support from a qualified financial professional, mental health professional, pastoral/spiritual care leader, or trusted support person. If you feel in immediate danger or crisis, contact local emergency services or a crisis hotline in your area.

Learning Objectives

By the end of this quiz, you should be able to:

1. Explain why day trading is financially risky.
 2. Distinguish faith-informed discipline from market prediction.
 3. Identify warning signs of unhealthy or compulsive trading.
 4. Recognize loss-chasing, secrecy, borrowing to trade, and refusal to stop after losses.
 5. Apply a safer, values-based framework for limits, reflection, transparency, and accountability.

QRU Memory Sentence

QRU stands for Quick Recall for Understanding. A QRU Memory Sentence is a short phrase designed to help you remember the core lesson.

Faith can guide your values, but it cannot predict the market.

Brief Concept Review

Day trading involves buying and selling financial instruments-such as stocks, options, currencies, or crypto-within short time frames, often within the same day. It can feel exciting because results appear quickly, but speed does not make trading safer. Fast decisions, leverage, transaction costs, emotional pressure, and market unpredictability can create serious financial risk.

Faith may help a person pause, examine motives, tell the truth, resist greed, practice humility, and seek accountability. But faith should not be treated as a trading signal. Prayer, confidence, intuition, or a feeling of certainty does not guarantee that a trade will succeed.

Seatbelt Analogy

Faith-informed discipline can be like wearing a seatbelt: it can help you act more carefully, slow down, and protect yourself from some harmful choices. But a seatbelt does not control the weather, remove road hazards, or make reckless driving safe.

In the same way, faith practices may support wisdom and self-control, but they do not remove market risk.

Research Note

Large empirical studies of active traders have repeatedly found that most individual day traders do not earn consistent profits after costs, and only a small minority show sustained profitability.

Brief source list:

- Barber, B. M., Lee, Y.-T., Liu, Y.-J., & Odean, T. "The Cross-Section of Speculator Skill: Evidence from Day Trading." Journal of Financial Markets, 2014.
- Barber, B. M., & Odean, T. "Trading Is Hazardous to Your Wealth: The Common Stock Investment Performance of Individual Investors." The Journal of Finance, 2000.
- Chague, F., De-Losso, R., & Giovannetti, B. "Day Trading for a Living?" Research on Brazilian futures day traders, 2020.

These studies do not mean every trader loses money, but they do support a clear educational warning: active day trading is very difficult, and most participants lose money after fees, spreads, taxes, and other costs.

Instructions

Answer each question. Some questions are multiple-choice, some are short answer, and one is a practical application scenario.

For multiple-choice questions, choose the best answer.

For short-answer questions, write 1-3 complete sentences unless otherwise instructed.

10. Short Answer

What should someone do if trading is causing distress, secrecy, relationship problems, financial harm, borrowing, or an inability to stop?

11. Practical Application Scenario

Read the scenario and answer the questions below.

Jordan begins day trading after watching online videos. At first, Jordan sets a small limit. After several losses, Jordan feels embarrassed and starts trading secretly at night. Jordan borrows money using a credit card cash advance and says, "I just need one big win to get back to even." Jordan also stops telling a spouse and a close friend about the trades.

11A. Short Answer

Identify at least three warning signs in Jordan's behavior.

11B. Short Answer

What would be a safer next step for Jordan?

12. Multiple Choice

Which statement shows the healthiest understanding of prayer and trading?

- A. "If I pray hard enough, I can know which trade will win."
 - B. "If I lose money, it means I did not have enough faith."
 - C. "Prayer can help me examine my motives and practice self-control, but it does not guarantee a profitable trade."

D. "Because I feel peaceful, this trade cannot be risky."

Answer Key with Model Answers

1. Correct Answer: B

Faith can support healthier decision-making, humility, patience, truthfulness, and accountability. However, faith does not reliably predict market movements or guarantee trading success.

2. Model Answer

Day trading is high-risk because markets are unpredictable, decisions happen quickly, and traders may face transaction costs, taxes, leverage, emotional pressure, and rapid losses. Many active traders lose money after costs, especially when they trade frequently or try to recover losses quickly.

3. Correct Answer: C

Large empirical studies generally show that most active day traders lose money after costs. A small minority may be profitable, but consistent success is uncommon.

4. Model Answer

Warning signs include secrecy, borrowing money to trade, lying about losses, relationship conflict, distress, obsessing over trades, inability to stop, increasing risk after losses, neglecting responsibilities, or believing that one big win will fix everything.

Accept any two accurate warning signs.

5. Correct Answer: C

Loss-chasing means risking more money in an attempt to recover previous losses. It is dangerous because emotion, urgency, shame, and desperation can override sound judgment.

6. Model Answer

Faith or religious practice can help by encouraging humility, patience, honesty, contentment, confession, Sabbath/rest, generosity, and accountability. It can help someone ask, "Am I acting from wisdom or fear, greed, pride, or desperation?" However, faith should not be treated as a market prediction tool.

7. Correct Answer: B

The QRU Memory Sentence is:

Faith can guide your values, but it cannot predict the market.

8. Model Answer

In the seatbelt analogy, the seatbelt represents faith-informed discipline, such as prayer, reflection, accountability, and limits. The dangerous weather represents market risk, uncertainty, volatility, and financial danger. A seatbelt can support safer behavior, but it does not control the weather or remove the risk.

9. Correct Answer: C

A prudent faith-informed approach includes setting strict limits, being honest, inviting accountability, and stopping when warning signs appear. Hiding trades, ignoring losses, and trading more after a loss are danger signs.

10. Model Answer

The person should pause or stop trading and seek support from a qualified financial professional, mental health professional, pastoral/spiritual care leader, or trusted support person.

If there is immediate danger or crisis, they should contact local emergency services or a crisis hotline.

11A. Model Answer

Jordan shows several warning signs, including:

- Trading secretly.
- Borrowing money to trade.
- Using credit card debt or cash advances.
- Trying to win back losses with "one big win."
- Hiding behavior from a spouse or trusted friend.
- Refusing to stop after losses.
- Loss-chasing.
- Emotional distress, shame, or desperation.

Accept any three accurate warning signs.

11B. Model Answer

A safer next step would be for Jordan to stop trading immediately, tell a trusted person the truth, avoid borrowing more money, and seek help from a qualified financial professional and/or mental health professional. Jordan may also benefit from pastoral or spiritual support focused on honesty, accountability, and wise decision-making.

12. Correct Answer: C

Prayer can support reflection, humility, emotional regulation, and self-control. It should not be used as a guarantee of profit or as proof that a risky trade is safe.

Scoring Guide

There are 12 total questions.

- Multiple-choice questions: 1 point each
- Short-answer questions: 1 point each

- Practical scenario question 11 has two parts:
- 11A: 1 point
- 11B: 1 point

Total possible score: 12 points

For short-answer questions, award full credit if the learner communicates the core idea clearly, even if the wording differs from the model answer.

Mastery Interpretation

| Score | Interpretation |

|---:---|

| 10-12 | Strong Mastery - You understand the core risks of day trading, the limits of faith as a market predictor, and the importance of accountability and stopping rules. |

| 7-9 | Developing Mastery - You understand several key ideas, but you should review warning signs, loss-chasing, and the difference between faith-informed discipline and prediction. |

| 4-6 | Needs Review - Revisit the disclaimer, memory sentence, research note, and practical scenario before applying these ideas. |

| 0-3 | High Review Priority - Do not rely on this quiz alone. Review the material carefully and consider discussing the topic with a qualified professional or trusted mentor before making any trading decisions. |

Closing Reinforcement

Day trading is not made safe by confidence, emotion, spiritual language, or urgency. A healthy faith-informed approach emphasizes truthfulness, humility, limits, rest, accountability, and care for one's household and responsibilities.
